NEW ZEALAND IS MODEL COUNTRY

No Poverty, No Millionaires, and No Trusts, Declares Speaker at Chautauqua

How the dominton of New Zealand has eliminated poverty, banished full-lionaires, kept out trusts, reduced the cost of living and eliminated the worry that comes to many as old age approaches was told to a large audience at the closing event of the Chautauqua and the Chautauqua at the closing event of the Chautauqua at the closin inspection and treatment laws which eliminate illiteracy and bring the health standards of the people to a high point. Abolish Monopolies

The speaker declared that whenmonopoly to control prices of certain products, the government steps in and conducts the same line of business selling at minimum prices. This puts the monopoly idea out of mind.

"Recently there was a move on foot to organize a meat trust in New Zealand," the lecturer declared. But the government butcher shops at which meats were sold at cost plus enough to continue operations. There was no

The speaker declared that most of the improvement in social and econ-omic conditions were brought about in New Zealand because nearly every person in the dominion makes use of his right to vote.

"The people of New Zealand are not much different from the peoples of the United States or other nations," the speaker said. "But they do recognize the power of the ballot and they use their voting strength to get what they want. Nincty-five per cent of the New Zealand citizens who have the right of ballot use that right. They know what they want and they get it with the ballot. Eliminate Graft

"We have climinated every loopwhich the grafte reach in and help himself to public Everybody takes an interest in politics and social betterment and as everybody is interested in what is going on, the public officer who is negligent is soon found out and climinated from public life. "New Zealanders do not hesitate to try a social experiment which seems promising. If it is successful it is backed to the limit. If it is not successful the government soon ceases to waste public moneys upon it." Protect Business Man

He waltzed about back of the counter in the health office and unlimbering his right arm in a few spirals, let it loose upon the back of John Felt, city milk in-spector with a thump that sent milk samples scattering all over city hall square.

Now John Felt is a man of ex-ceedingly sunny disposition, for he lives in Huntsville, and even smiles when bumping over the Ogden canyon road in a filver. But when Charlie, who has a dainty and lily-white paw of the size and shape of a sugar-cured blade, John had to demur, "Whatta you think it is, your birthday?" John thundered. "You sure hit it on the head," roared Bass," you young gays are some guessers." And Charlie Bass proved it.

When the inquisitive reporter sought to determine what age Charlie has reached it was to no avail. Charite danced from the room singing and capering and as a parting snot yelled, "I am as young as I act."

"He must be fourteed," growled Mr. Felt as he gathered up his scattered samples.
